Annapolis Royal is nestled in the Annapolis Valley between the Annapolis and Allain Rivers and was originally called "Te'wapskik" (flowing waters) by the native Mi'kmaq. It is located only minutes away from the world-famous Bay of Fundy and is home to the only tidal power plant in North America.

The Annapolis Basin is a popular spot for fishing, and there are scenic lakes nearby, perfect for swimming, kayaking, canoeing, hiking and bird-watching. Whale watching is also just a short drive away. The scenic beauty, laid-back lifestyle and friendly hospitality make Annapolis Royal a nature lover's paradise.

Known for the highest tides and some of the most dramatic coastal seascapes in the world, the Bay of Fundy is 1 of 28 world finalists, and Canada's only entry, in the global contest to name the New 7 Wonders of Nature.
